

PY100: Introduction to Psychology

---

This lab course provides an overview of psychological science from biobehavioral and socio-behavioral perspectives. Theory and research related to the brain, perception, learning, intelligence, personality, social interaction, development, and abnormal behavior are examined. Content includes an introduction to methods of inquiry and the ways in which research findings are applied in contemporary society.